This beautiful right-hand drive R129 Mercedes SL500 V8 was supplied new on 1st June 1995 in Japan. It is finished in flagship Silver paint, has a Black leather interior and just the right amount of walnut across the dashboard and steering wheel. With more than 300hp on tap and 60mph achieved in a smidge over six seconds, the 4-speed automatic transmission will carry you effortlessly to 155mph, should you find yourself driving on the SL's native Autobahn. The original eight-hole alloy wheels are in great shape and all four are shod in healthy Bridgestone tyres. Since registration in the UK in 2018 it has been maintained by the highly regarded Robinsons Motor Engineers Ltd; most recently in November 2020 when a mechanical refresh to the tune of £3197 occurred. It comes with its original Japanese leather wallet, all manuals, invoices, two keys, registration document and factory hard top (Solid type). The car shows 1 former keeper since import, and has now covered 34787 kms (21615 miles) i...
